

I'm not the one who died that day, but life has never been the same.

The ripple effect of workplace accidents don't just impact the victim.

2019 Day of Mourning

April 28 has been designated as the international Day of Mourning to remember those who have lost their lives due to a workplace injury or occupational disease. SAIT will once again play host to the annual ceremony on the main campus. The theme of this year's event is mental health and the impacts workplace accidents have on survivors.
